

What is CAN?

Charity Action Network's (also known as CAN) mission is to provide an array of welfare services for the less privileged women and children in communities of developing nations to enable them to acquire improved living standards and accomplish their dreams. We believe the human race reflects oneness, and it is our passion to uphold this reality and support the cause of unity in our global community.

About Our NGO

CAN was launched in 2015, by Founder and Ceo, Khaddijatou Barry Demba along with a group of dedicated ladies and gentlemen. Our mission is to help provide and protect women and children from the dangers that come with poverty. With the help of our amazing team, we've had a plethora of projects and fundraisers since first establishing, including our annual Iftar Distribution, in which we donate food packages to struggling families and homeless individuals during the Holy Month of Ramadan. We've also organized a clothing distribution where we collected and distributed clothing to mothers in need and their children. In addition to our annual charity, we also offer an array of programs that assist women and children, such as the SCSS, a start up capital program that provides women with the funds needed to start a business. The ESS, another program of ours, aids children in securing scholarships and obtain a proper education.
